

We encourage and support new ideas and are always seeking to improve the quality of patients' lives.

Qmedics AG is a privately held, independent Swiss medical technology company founded in 2008. We develop and manufacture stents, stent systems and balloon dilatation catheters. Our portfolio offers standard and customized products, solutions and technologies. With our passion for life, we focus on innovation and enhancement the concept of endovascular implants.

We are looking for a competent and assertive personality as

Head Supply Chain and Logistics

Your Responsibilities

Your focus is on active management and efficient design of cooperation between development, production and supply chain - lively and right on the pulse of our company. You are directly reporting to the CEO and will lead a small team. Together, we pursue the goal of offering our customers the best possible service.

Together with your team you will take care of a continuous supply of the production as well as on-time order processing and delivery to our customers.

Your other core tasks include rolling rough and detailed planning of capacity and material requirements, as well as close coordination with key suppliers and internal divisions regarding the introduction of new products.

Your Qualifications

- Completed studies, preferably in the field of business administration
- Relevant work experience in the supply chain, preferably from a medium-sized industrial production environment of medical devices
- Experience in international shipping with customs regulations knowledge
- Leadership experience
- Strong analytical thinking and organizational skills
- High social skills, good moderation and motivation skills
- Fluent German and English
- Strong knowledge of MS Office, especially Excel and experience with ERP solutions (Navision)

We offer you a position built on independence and responsibility, in which you decisively shape the success of your department. A non-routine job awaits you in a highly motivated and dedicated leadership team.

We look forward to receiving your application at HR@qmedics.ch to the attention of our HR Manager Sabine Anna Gnädinger. Please note, that we do not work with recruitment agencies to fill this vacancy. Only direct applications will be considered.